

How Do We Recruit Professional Companions?

The greatest asset of the Professional Accompaniment Platform is not the software—it is a trusted network of well-trained, compassionate companions. Building a high-quality workforce is essential to delivering meaningful human support.

1. University Students

Recruit students majoring in psychology, social work, nursing, education, rehabilitation, medicine, and public health. Provide training, certification, supervision, and practical experience.

2. Retired Professionals

Invite retired nurses, teachers, physicians, social workers, counselors, and business professionals to continue contributing to society.

3. Family Caregivers

People who have cared for loved ones with autism, depression, anxiety, dementia, cancer, or chronic illness can become excellent companions after additional training.

4. Healthcare and Community Partnerships

Collaborate with hospitals, rehabilitation centers, senior centers, community organizations, faith-based organizations, and nonprofit agencies.

5. Corporate Volunteers

Partner with companies through Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) programs to recruit employee volunteers.

Three-Level Training System

Level 1 – Companion

Level 2 – Senior Companion

Level 3 – Professional Companion

Ongoing Support

Professional supervision, case discussions, continuing education, emotional wellness support, and clear ethical boundaries.

Our Vision

We are developing a new profession: Professional Companions. Through standardized training, certification, ethical guidelines, supervision, and AI-assisted tools, we aim to build a trusted workforce that provides safe, compassionate, and person-centered companionship.
